More than 300,000 miles for Catholic education

When the school year ended this June, so, too, did the daily carpooling that two Random Lake families did to Dominican High School, Whitefish Bay. Read in the June 24 Catholic Herald about the dedication of the Ritger and Sinnen families who made the 33-mile trek daily for 13 years to give their children a Catholic education. ##### This news is Good News!

While the adage "no news is good news" has merit, the news you'll find in the Catholic Herald is always Good News. It's news of Christ's mission on earth being carried out in the 21st century. Keep in touch with the Good News of your faith through the Catholic Herald newspaper. ##### Being Catholic is no mystery for author

Mary Higgins Clark has kept readers in suspense for years, as the author of 24 spine-tingling, bestselling mysteries. While her stories often leave readers hanging on until the end before the crime is solved, Clark leaves no doubt in her books about her Catholic roots. Read about Clark's visit to the Milwaukee Archdiocese and her June 28 Pallium Lecture presentation at the Cousins Center in the July 8 issue of the Catholic Herald. ##### From the source

In recent years, news of the Catholic Church has been headlines in most media outlets. While the church has become news to the secular media, why not get the full, in-depth story on your church from a Catholic publication? Each week, the Catholic Herald newspaper, paper of the Archdiocese of Milwaukee, reports on the church, both locally and internationally. From the aftermath of the clergy abuse scandal to the travels of Pope John Paul II, you'll read it in the Herald. ##### Unlikely saint

A struggling student who couldn't make the grade at St. Francis Seminary didn't give up his dream of religious life. After being asked to leave the seminary in 1896 because of poor grades, this young man entered the Capuchin Order, was ordained at St. Francis Church, Milwaukee in 1904, and lived a life so pious, he is now on the road to sainthood. Declared venerable by the pope in 1995, Fr. Solanus Casey may become the first native-born male saint in the United States. Learn in the July 22 issue of the Catholic Herald, about this holy man from a local friar who lived with him. #### Chipping away at male dominance

By naming three women to key Vatican institutions earlier this year, Pope John Paul II chipped away at centuries of male dominance at the center of the universal church. The groundbreaking Vatican appointments were celebrated as a sign of the times. Read about the appointments and what they mean for the future of the church in the Aug. 5 edition of the Catholic Herald newspaper. #### Being good sports

For many students, athletics is an integral part of a child's school experience. But sometimes winning at all costs overshadows the game even for the very young. How can parents help their children keep winning and losing in perspective while promoting values of good sportsmanship? For ideas on teaching your children to become good sports, read the September issue of Catholic Herald Parenting in the Aug. 26 issue of the Catholic Herald newspaper.
