2001

Archbishop Desmond Tutu, Nobel Peace Prize laureate, visited the Diocese of Madison, Wisconsin, in 2001. He was accompanied by Bishop Genevieve D'Ercole and other diocesan leaders. Archbishop Tutu's visit was a significant event for the diocese, as he is one of the most prominent African leaders in the world. He spoke at a luncheon at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and met with the clergy and lay faithful of the diocese. Archbishop Tutu's visit was a testament to the power of reconciliation and the importance of dialogue in building a more just and peaceful world.
