

We're so thankful to God for your involvement with us in our ministry with Campus Crusade for Christ. You're having a significant influence with the students at Sac State through your gifts and prayers.

Here's some of the happenings from the last weeks:

The lesson one week in Valerie's training group was on evangelism. So to apply the content she challenged each of the women to bring a non-Christian friend with them to their next one-on-one time with Valerie so that Valerie could demonstrate how to share Christ.

Each of the women responded enthusiastically and brought a friend. Paige, one of Valerie's disciples, had never shared her faith before. She brought her friend to the appointment and then initiated the conversation, turned it to Christ and ended up sharing the gospel herself with her friend. Paige commented later that its pretty easy after all to share with your friends.

Sabrina is in another one of Valerie's discipleship groups and has grown strongly since September. One of the highlights of Sabrina's burgeoning personal ministry recently was when she used her influence as the head of a student committee on campus concerts to have the school sponser Campus Crusade's 50s band the Convertibles.

The Convertibles played twice on campus, once at noon in the student union and then at night in the dining commons. Each time they performed an envagelistic concert.

One of the really exciting things about this outreach was that it was initiated by a student (Sabrina) who convinced the school to advertise it and partially fund it. And the best part is we received some very good contacts from the concerts and students have trusted Christ. Thanks for your prayers.

Julian, one of the guys I work with, was training Terry, one of Julian's disciples, how to share the gospel. Julian then took Terry out on the Quad to give Terry some practical experience. For the first time in his life Terry shared the gospel with a guy named Carlos who trusted Christ. Terry is now meeting Carlos weekly to help Carlos grow in his new relationship with Christ.

Where your ministry is going:

Your influence through your prayers and gifts will go far and wide this summer. Here is where you will be sending us (ourselves and our disciples) as part of Campus Crusade summer projects to minister for the Savior...
