The organisers

The Future Leaders Program is sponsored by the Victorian Multicultural Commission through the Interfaith Grants program and organised by the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation Commission, a community organisation dedicated to promoting respect between people of different backgrounds and opposing all forms of racism. Our model is the international Abrahamic conferences which bring together members of the great monotheistic faiths.

Future Leaders Program

2- 4 February 2009

Are you a future leader?

Are you a committed member of the Muslim, Christian or Jewish community? Are you a dynamic young person, approximately 18 to 26 years and see yourself as a future leader of your community? Are you keen to learn leadership skills including teamwork, vision and overcoming challenges? If so, you may be eligible to join the multifaith Future Leaders Program.

A free learning opportunity

Participants begin with a free three-day leadership training workshop from 2-4 February 2009. The workshop will be an opportunity to join in hands-on leadership training activities with other young people from different faith communities. Participants are expected to form a network of connections to support each other in future leadership endeavours.

A multi-faith environment

A key element of the program is the shared involvement of Christian, Muslim and Jewish young people learning together the skills which all their communities need and forming connections which cross the boundaries of their respective communities.

Hands-on learning

The three-day workshop offers a packed program of activities designed to engage people of different backgrounds in learning new skills, exploring commonalities and making meaningful connections. You will learn personal and group skills through activities that engage mind, body, heart and spirit.

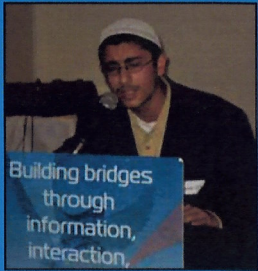

Activities include:

- Public speaking
- Media skills
- Drumming
- Ropes
- Managing volunteers
- Life balance
- Encounter programs
- Dynamic and challenging speakers
- Film discussion

Sharing our worlds

Whether you are Muslim, Christian or Jewish, you probably understand the strengths, challenges and possibilities for your own community. But chances are you have had little opportunity to find out how other communities function or to talk with other young people who share your commitment to being an active member of multicultural Australia.

The Future Leaders Program is a unique opportunity to learn the kind of leadership skills everyone needs to make a contribution to communal life while getting to know people from different backgrounds.

The emphasis is not on faith or practices but on learning leadership skills. The uniqueness of this program is the opportunity it offers to learn with young people from other faith backgrounds and gain from their perspectives on leadership and community.

The program is funded through the Victorian Government's Interfaith Grants program to build leadership skills among different faith communities for the future.
